Day 1: Thursday 6 June - 7:00pm to 10:00pm – Grundtvig Awards and dinner

The European Year of Citizens 2013 Conference: The challenges and opportunities for adult learning

Day 2: Friday 7 June - 10:00am to 4.30pm - for EAEA members and Day 2 Conference delegates

Background

Across Europe and beyond governments are facing challenges set by the economic crisis. Adult education plays an important role in addressing these—through the provision of basic skills, learning to learn and vocational education. However it has been argued that there is wider crisis that adult educators should concern themselves with in democratic engagement. Across the EU there are many approaches to, and understandings of, citizenship education. This conference explores the wider role of learning for active citizenship across society and European countries through inputs from across the membership of the European Association for the Education of Adults. There will be key note speeches setting the context from academics, policy makers and leaders, alongside practitioner-led workshops on four themes:

- Basic Skills learning for Active Citizenship
- Migration, minorities and adult learning
- Adult learning as a tool for transnational tolerance
- The role of adult learning in democratic engagement

Aims

- to explore the contribution of adult learning to active citizenship and democratic engagement
- to compare experience, practice and approaches and make recommendations for local, national and European developments
- to discuss the issue of European citizenship, democracy and adult learning at a time of crisis

Outcomes

By the end of the conference, participants will have had the opportunity to

- hear the latest thinking and policy analysis on the subject of adult learning for active citizenship
- seen practical examples of good practice from across Europe
- contributed to discussions and a draft set of recommendations

Audience

- members of EAEA
- other adult education practitioners, policy makers and learners from across Europe.
