

Task 3

Last week, my family and I filled out a food diary. We wanted to keep track of what we were eating and it's so difficult to do that when you have a busy life. Each day, we made a note of what we ate and at the end of the week, we could see what we ate in a typical day.

Yesterday, for instance, for breakfast, I had two slices of toast with butter and jam and a cup of tea with milk and sugar. My husband, Adam, had 2 sausages, 1 fried egg, 2 slices of bacon, 2 slices of toast, a spoonful of baked beans and a cup of coffee. Kamal, our son, had a bowl of porridge and a banana.

We always have a morning snack because we get hungry at about 11 o'clock. Yesterday, I had a cup of tea –again, with milk and sugar – and two chocolate biscuits. Adam had a packet of crisps and a can of coke, and Kamal had a glass of water and a raw carrot.

For lunch, I had a ham salad, a glass of orange juice and a yoghurt. Adam had a burger with chips, a chocolate bar and a bottle of water. Kamal had his lunch at school – I gave him a ham sandwich, an apple, an orange, a yoghurt and a bottle of water.

In the evening, we ate dinner as a family and we all had roast chicken and vegetables. For dessert, I had a chocolate pudding and Kamal had fruit salad - Adam had both! Kamal and Adam had a glass of water, but I had one more cup of tea – with milk and sugar, of course!
